What's involved?

Building a Dream is a fun 'Apprentice style' team building activity that sees teams working together to build and manufacture a range of children's bikes ready for despatch to worthy projects in the community.

The event kicks off with an introduction from the Chief Executive of 'Wheelies', our fictitious bike manufacturer, who briefs the teams and is hoping that they can help drive the business forward, have an impact on the market and impress the local community with their products and charitable-giving programme.

Briefings complete, it's then down to each team to work together to meet clear goals and targets by the end of the session to ensure that their product is ready to despatch to market by the end of the day.

And as the team face a range of roles, responsibilities and challenges, it's down to them to work together in order to ensure that their product is complete and their presentations ready in time for the Chief Executive's Product Briefing at the allocated time.

As part of the event each team will be responsible for producing and building one new bike and also completing a range of other activities including a number of team challenges to secure bike parts plus a fun marketing and sales pitch!

At the end of the activity, the team's completed bikes will be donated to a local community organisation supporting local kids and the teams will hear how their efforts will benefit the chosen project. If given enough time, we can also get the young people to the event to personally receive their new bikes from the teams.
